

THE CICERONIAN SOCIETY

Call For Papers 2022 ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Grove City College, Grove City, PA
MARCH 11-12, 2022

The Ciceronian Society is an international community of Christian scholars and public intellectuals committed to the examination of three core themes - tradition, place, and 'things divine' - and their role in the cultivation of a civilization built upon the principles common to the traditions of historic Christianity. The Ciceronian Society is excited to bring back its annual interdisciplinary conference and invites proposals for papers, panels, and roundtables.

PROPOSAL DEADLINE: DECEMBER 1st, 2021

Proposals should consist of a (1) title, (2) all relevant authors, and (3) a brief abstract

Send proposals by e-mail to info@ciceroniansociety.org

Previous conferences have included scholars and practitioners from classics, political science, law, sociology, linguistics, religious studies, architecture, art, philosophy, theology, history, economics, literature, and more!

We've seen papers on Wendell Berry, Aquinas, Bob Dylan, Philip Rieff, Hayek, Albert Jay Nock, Thoreau, Aristotle, Cormac McCarthy, the American Founders, Tocqueville, Kant, MacIntyre, Walker Percy, Adam Smith, Raymond Chandler, C.S. Lewis, Edmund Burke, Dante, Lincoln, Leo Strauss, Eric Voegelin, Machiavelli, Nietzsche, Augustine, T.S. Eliot, Mises, Seneca, Shakespeare, Robert Nisbet, Hawthorne, and, of course, Cicero.

Our presenters have covered an enormous range of topics, including constitutionalism, political theology, American political development, friendship, aristocracy, religious liberty, moral theory, agrarianism, Biblical hermeneutics, historiography, Catholic social teaching, rights, conservatism, liberalism, virtue, pedagogy, literary criticism, race, democracy, natural law, hospitality, ideology, conservation, and imagination.